Power Chords

Power Chords are used extensively in rock n' roll music. As with musical tools, they are good thing to have in the tool box.

The power chord consists of only two notes, the root note, and the fifth note of the scale. Therefore, power chords are typically charted as written C5, E5, etc. The power chord does NOT contain the third note of the scale so it does not communicate a major OR minor feel to the listener. Power chords can be used anywhere a major OR minor chord is called for, if the use of the power chord fits the situation.

While they only contain two notes, they are typically played as three note chords consisting of the root, the fifth, although they could also be played as two note double stops::

G5	C5	G5	C5
G	C	G	C
D	G	D	G
		G	C

Repeating the root gives the power chord a 'fuller' sound, than just playing the two notes of root and fifth. While power chords can be played in any position, it is the power chords in the lower registers (i.e. played on the E,A & D, or the A,D & G strings) that really communicate the 'power' feeling.

G5 and C5 double stop and power chord shapes are as follows:

The image shows musical notation for G5 and C5 double stops and power chords. It consists of a treble clef staff with a key signature of one sharp (F#) and a common time signature. The staff contains two measures of music. The first measure shows a G5 double stop (G and D) and a G5 power chord (G, D, G). The second measure shows a C5 double stop (C and G) and a C5 power chord (C, G, C). Below the staff are three lines representing the strings: T (Treble), A (A), and B (Bass). The fret numbers for the double stops and power chords are indicated below the strings: 5, 7, 8, 10, 12, 14, 15, 17, 19, 21, 23, 25, 27, 29, 31, 33, 35, 37, 39, 41, 43, 45, 47, 49, 51, 53, 55, 57, 59, One also needs to be careful to just let the fretted notes ring out. One technique is to arch your fretting hand slightly to dampen the first string next to “floor side” of the power chord if it is inadvertently struck. For instance, dampen the G string for power chords on the on the E,A & D strings, the B string for power chords played on the A,D & G strings. For this trio of strings you can also dampen the low E string with the side of your thumb if necessary.

With practice you should be able to play only the fretted strings but it can take time if you have never done it. As with all new tools, practice it slowly until you get it.

The song Holiday be Green Day is an excellent example of a song built primarily on power chords:

Holiday - Green Day

Intro

F5	D ^{b5}	A ^{b5}	E ^{b5}
//	//	//	//	x5

Verses 1,2,3,4

F5	D ^{b5}	A ^{b5}	E ^{b5}	F5	D ^{b5}	A ^{b5}	C5
//	//	//	//	//	//	//
F5	D ^{b5}	A ^{b5}	E ^{b5}	C5	C5	C5	C5
//	//	//	//	//	//	//	//

Choruses 1,2

F5	F5	D ^{b5}	D ^{b5}	A ^{b5}	A ^{b5}	E ^{b5}	E ^{b5}
//	//	//	//	//	//	//
F5	F5	D ^{b5}	D ^{b5}	A ^{b5}	A ^{b5}	C5	C5

This song is also a good example of switching the same shape between two groups of strings with the F5 spanning the E, A & D strings starting at first fret and the D^{b5} spanning the A, D & G strings starting at the fourth fret. Likewise the A^{b5} spans the E, A & D strings beginning at the fourth fret and the E^{b5} spans the A, D & G strings beginning at the sixth fret.

When sliding the “5” shapes up the same set of strings you have two choices. One is to dampen the chord by slightly lifting your fretting hand off the strings as you slide. The other is to hear the slide (up or down) by applying just enough pressure with your fretting hand to let the slide be heard, but slight light enough to slide the shape on the fretboard.

Incorporating palm muting into power chord playing is also a very effective method to give the chords a percussive sound. So.... Go forth. Have fun. Rock on.

Enjoy !
